IRIS GERMANICA

German Iris

From the second week of July on, we consider the best time to transplant Iris Germanica. We have found that the tops are well ripened and the roots can be moved and transplanted with very good results. If planted at this time, the plants will immediately start making a new growth and the following Spring they will flower almost to perfection. You will gain an entire year on the production.

We believe we have a list of varieties which will cover the outstanding sorts such as Ambassadeur, Lord of June, Gold Imperial and other varieties equally as good. The older varieties we are listing are the sorts that are maintained in cultivation because of their beauty and will readily sell, either for catalog work or for all sorts of resale purposes. We ask that you kindly take time and check over our list. We always ship plants of good quality.
